Questions and comments from the floor
- 9.20 - 10.15 Addressing challenges for building social housing: planning, meeting demand and financing projects
With the Government increasing the Housing Infrastructure Fund, establishing a Land Assembly Fund and planning to publish a Green Paper on social housing in the spring, what more should be done to increase the availability of social homes? How can the Government and local authorities best coordinate to set and achieve targets on meeting objectively assessed need under the National Planning Policy Framework, and will proposed reforms to reduce land-banking ensure more land is available for housing? What impact has the Home Building Fund had on increasing access to funding for SME house builders, and with the European Investment Bank freezing investment on new social housing in the UK, what further options exist for the financing of housing? To what extent will lifting the housing revenue account borrowing cap in areas of high affordability pressure allow local authorities to build more homes?
Phillip Russell, Director, One Oak Development
Carol Matthews, Partner, Wright Hassall
David Cassidy, Head of Social Housing, Barclays
Harry Mears, Head of Social Housing, KPMG
Councillor Gill Taylor, Briefholder for Housing, Weymouth and Portland Borough Council and Deputy Mayor, Borough of Weymouth and Portland

- 11.45 - 12.30 Next steps for standards, safety and improving stakeholder engagement
In light of the Grenfell Tower inquiry - which will examine the adequacy of building and fire regulations, and the local authority's response to complaints about fire risk, and findings from the Dame Judith Hackitt interim report that high-rise building regulations are 'not fit for purpose' - what more should be done to ensure that social housing is safe? With National Audit Office statistics reporting that 14% of social homes are not up to the required standard, how can social housing providers guarantee suitable living conditions? What are the next steps for improving engagement between tenants and social landlords?
