With NHS England recommending that ACs and some advanced Sustainability and Transformation Partnerships (STPs) take delegated responsibility for commissioning specialised services in its 'Next steps on the Five-Year Forward View' document, what are the barriers to implementation, and how might these be overcome? How would this collaboration affect the principle of a purchaser-provider split, and what effect is this likely to have on patient care? What role should NHS England play in overseeing the commissioning and delivery of specialised services by ACs? With Clinical Commissioning Groups collaborating to co-commission specialised services in these areas, what capacity issues, particularly in terms of CCG workforce, need to be addressed to effectively commission and deliver services?
