What are the implications from the HE sector and students of the findings in the OIA's annual report, particularly around mental health issues, concerns affecting international students and challenges faced by new providers in complying with the new framework? How can best practice in the sector be better shared and rolled out more widely? How do the issues of addressing complaints vary for providers of different scales, stages of development and operating in particularly challenging contexts across the HE sector? How might a complaints system be developed that meets the needs of the entire sector?
