- 9.50 - 10.40 Personal budgets in practice: funding, supporting budget holders and the impact of the Care Act
How successful has the introduction of personal health budgets for people with long-term conditions been in promoting choice, and what lessons can be learnt for further roll out? What provisions for funding need to be put in place, with Clinical Commissioning Groups now required to give all recipients of continuing healthcare funding the right to ask for a personal health budget? What is the potential for the third sector in supporting budget holders in managing their budgets, particularly in carrying out their responsibilities as employers, and how can new technology be effectively utilised to help budget holders simplify the direct payment process in line with personal care plans? To what extent has the Care Act promoted choice for service users, and what more should be done to support local authorities in their new statutory responsibility to help manage and develop the market for services?
