With proposals expected to be put forward on sustainable funding of social care, what should be the priorities for addressing pressures from changing demographics and rising multimorbidities which are impacting on the sector? To what extent has additional £2bn of funding relieved pressures on services; what further measures are needed to ensure services are delivered in the short term, and, following the introduction of the adult social care precept, what other options should be put in place to allow local authorities to raise money? With a report from the House of Lords Select Committee on the Long-term Sustainability of the NHS warning that health and social care systems are 'interdependent but poorly coordinated', what more should be done to encourage closer working between the sector in the context of funding reform, and what role can housing play in supporting integration?
